Additional Accolades for Online Programs

By Elizabeth Tollefson on Tuesday, July 7, 2015

Online degree programs in communication and in information technology management offered by the University of Minnesota Crookston have been ranked among the best online bachelor's programs by Nonprofit Colleges Online, an online learning resource.

The two degree programs were recognized recently with the 2015-16 "Students Before Profits Award." According to the organization, the award "was created to promote nonprofit colleges and universities offering online degree programs that put students before profits and education before the bottom line." Programs were ranked according to their affordability and were selected from accredited, nonprofit colleges and universities with objectively lower than average tuition costs.

The U of M Crookston's online major in information technology management came in at number 8 out of 45 ranked colleges and universities across the United States. The full list is available online at www.nonprofitcollegesonline.com/rankings/best-online-bachelors-in-information-technology.
